Paolo Alli for RFE: NATO understands the Serbian balance policy

"We respect Serbia's decision not to become a NATO member because we understand that that is such a mood of citizens. It is not necessary for Serbia to join NATO, but we highly appreciate that Serbia cooperates with us in security matters," Radio Free Europe (RFE) Paolo Alli, President of the Parliamentary Assembly of the NATO Alliance, who was in Serbia last week.

NATO official: During the bombing in 1999 there were probably mistakes

NATO Parliamentary Assembly President Paolo Alli believes that it is not necessary for Serbia to join NATO at this moment. Perhaps this will happen in the future, but it depends on citizens of Serbia, and not from the Alliance, Alli says. What happened in 1999 is clearly engraved in the memory of the citizens of Serbia, according to the NATO official.

NATO official: There were probably mistakes in the bombing of Serbia, but we must not forget ONE THING

We fully understand why public opinion in Serbia is opposed to joining NATO. What happened in 1999 is clearly engraved in the memory of Serbian citizens. Probably things would have been different if the UN Security Council resolution was previously secured, but we must not forget what happened during Milosevic's rule. There were probably mistakes, but I think the situation here was really dramatic, said Paolo Alli, President of the Parliamentary Assembly of NATO.
